Methodology

Fieldwork Dates

24th – 28th January 2018

Data Collection Method

The survey was conducted via online panel. Invitations to complete surveys were sent out to members of the panel. Differential response rates from different demographic groups were taken into account.

Population Sampled

All residents aged 16+ in Scotland.

Sample Size

1,029

Data Weighting

Data were weighted to the profile of all Scottish adults aged 16+. Data were weighted by age, sex, region, 2017 General Election vote and 2014 referendum vote. Targets for the weighted data were derived from Office of National Statistics data, the results of the 2017 UK General Election and the 2014 referendum result.

Margin of Error

Because only a sample of the full population was interviewed, all results are subject to margin of error, meaning that not all differences are statistically significant. For example, in a question where 50% (the worst case scenario as far as margin of error is concerned) gave a particular answer, with a sample of 1,029 it is 95% certain that the 'true' value will fall within the range of 3.1% from the sample result. Subsamples from the cross-breaks will be subject to higher margin of error, conclusions drawn from cross breaks with very small sub-samples should be treated with caution.

Voting Intention

In order to assess voting intention, we first asked respondents how likely they would be to vote in the next general election on a scale of 0-10. This likelihood to vote for was then used to weight voters' responses, such that respondents replying "10" were weighted by a factor of 1.0, whilst those responding "9" were weighted by a factor of 0.9, and so on down to responses of "0" being excluded altogether.

Respondents were then asked who they would be most likely to vote for if that election were tomorrow, with the responses "Scottish Labour", "Scottish Conservative and Unionist", "Scottish Liberal Democrat" and "Scottish National Party (SNP)" prompted in a randomising order, and other parties displayed if the respondents selected "Another Party". When asked who they would be most likely to vote for with their regional list vote, the responses "Scottish Green Party" and "UKIP" were also prompted in a randomising order. These responses were not prompted for other questions about voting intention. As an additional weighting step, respondents who replied "undecided" and "refused" were then removed from the sample.

Question presentation

All data tables shown in full below, in order and wording put to respondents, including but not limited to all tables relating to published data and all relevant tables preceding them. Tables for demographic questions might not be included but these should be clear from the cross-breaks on published tables. In all questions where the responses are a list of parties, names or statements, these will typically have been displayed to respondents in a randomising order. The only questions which would not have had randomising responses would be those in which there was a natural order to maintain – e.g. a scale from “strongly agree” to “strongly disagree”, a list of numbers from 0 to 10 or questions which had factual rather than opinion-related answers such as demographic information. “Other”, “Don't know” and “Refused” responses are not randomised.

Not all questions will have necessarily been asked to all respondents – this is because they may be follow-on questions from previous questions or only appropriate to certain demographic groups. Lower response counts should make clear where this has occurred.

Data were analysed and weighted by Survation.

Q1. In 2008, The Trump Organization originally won approval to invest £1bn into a site in Aberdeenshire, with the aim of building a five-star hotel with 450 rooms, shops, a sports complex, timeshare flats, two golf courses and housing estates which would generate 6,000 jobs. The Leader of the Aberdeenshire Council has said that "the economic benefit [of the project] hasn't come through", but The Trump Organization has said that the project is still in its early stages and investment is "set to continue for some time". Q6. The Scottish and UK governments are locked in a dispute over what happens to powers over areas like farming and fishing which are not reserved to Westminster, but which are currently exercised in Brussels rather than by the devolved parliaments. The Scottish Government, and some Scottish Conservative MPS, fear a "power grab" by Westminster, and that formerly devolved powers will remain with the UK Government. The UK Government has insisted that these powers will be devolved "unless there is a good reason not to", but have so far failed to act. Which of the following is closest to your view?

Q7. By Normal Weighting

Q7. Under the Scotland Act (1998), policies relating to food, fishing, farming and the environment were devolved to the Scottish Parliament, although in practice they were controlled by the EU.

Following Brexit, power over these issues will be repatriated to the UK, but it is unknown whether the UK Parliament in Westminster or the Scottish Parliament in Holyrood will end up having power over these issues.

Q12. By Normal Weighting

Q12. A briefing by Scottish Parliament Researchers showed that the Scottish Government's draft budget proposals include a loophole that would mean people earning between £43,525 and £58,500 pay less tax next year than they currently do.

However, those earning between £33,000 and £43,524, and those earning above £58,500 would pay more than they currently do.

Researchers have estimated that closing this loophole could raise as much as £90 million for the Scottish Government.

To what extent do you agree or disagree that the Scottish Government should close this loophole?

9	6	Q6. The Scottish and UK governments are locked in a dispute over what happens to powers over areas like farming and fishing which are not reserved to Westminster, but which are currently exercised in Brussels rather than by the devolved parliaments. The Scottish Government, and some Scottish Conservative MPs, fear a "power grab" by Westminster, and that formerly devolved powers will remain with the UK Government. The UK Government has insisted that these powers will be devolved "unless there is a good reason not to", but have so far failed to act. Which of the following is closest to your view?	Base: All Respondents	1029
